I am Weak but Thou Art Strong

Zechariah 4:6

Zechariah 4:6 was a message of hope to the discouraged children of God. They have just returned from the captivity of Babylon. The verse is directed to Zerubbabel, who was the governor of Judah at that time. The message is that the rebuilding of the temple would not be accomplished through human might or power but by the Spirit of God. This was meant to encourage the people that despite their limitations, God's Spirit would enable them to complete the task.

This verse, therefore, is a powerful reminder of the divine assistance that enables the people of God to accomplish tasks beyond their abilities. It underscores the belief that it is not by human strength, but by the power of God's Spirit, that great things are achieved. This message would have provided much-needed encouragement to the Jewish people as they faced the daunting task of rebuilding their temple and restoring their community after the exile.

In life, it is easy to fall into the trap of relying solely on our own abilities and strengths. We often believe that we have the power to accomplish our goals and achieve success through our efforts alone. We must remember that relying solely on our own power will not lead us to the fulfillment and the accomplishment of God's goals for us.

When we release our faith and trust in the power of God, amazing things happen. Only when we let go of our strength and surrender to His power are God's limitless possibilities open to us. By serving and giving, we demonstrate our faith in His ability to provide and bless us abundantly.

We must trust and embrace the unmerited favor of God that is available to us through faith. It is easy to feel unworthy or undeserving of His blessings, but through faith, we can truly grasp the reality that His favor is not based on our own merits. When we fully embrace this truth, the impossible no longer seems impossible because we have entrusted it to God.

When we let go of our limitations and trust in God's unlimited power, there is no obstacle too great for Him to overcome. Our faith and surrender enable Him to work miracles in our lives, bringing about the fulfillment of His goals for us. As long as we continue to rely solely on our own strength, we limit what God can do in and through us.

As a people of God, what must we do? We must step out in faith and release our needs, and our goals into God's hands. Let us serve and give with a trusting heart, knowing that He will provide for our needs and continue to bless us. By embracing His unmerited favor through faith we step into the power and mercy of God's grace, and the impossible becomes possible.

Remember, it is not about what we can achieve on our own. It is always about what God can do through us. It is always about our trust in the power of God when we trust and surrender to His plans. As long as we work in our strength, we will fall short of God's goals for our lives. However, when we release our faith and trust in the unmerited favor of God, life changes and God's presence becomes infinitely closer. So let us step out in faith today and watch God work miracles in our lives!
